

After the devastation of World War II and divided city during the Cold War, Berlin has returned to its traditional charm. Senior visitors will find it today offers everything they can enjoy in museums, parks, upscale shops, theaters and hundreds of great restaurants.

Beyond the expected, here are just a few of the many enjoyably unexpected activities to do in Berlin:

Swing Along On A Segway: City Segway offers themed tours around the city and sights on two-wheeled electric scooters. You not only cover considerably more ground than when walking, but senior legs and energy last much longer. citysegwaytours.com/berlin

Visit The Zoo: Located in the Tiergarten section of the city, it's a world-class destination, featuring thousands of exotic birds and animals, many in their natural habitats. zoo-berlin.de/en.html

The Berlin Philharmony: One of the world's greatest, it performs in an amazing hall with incredible acoustics. The schedule includes everything from the classics of old masters to today's new musical trends.

berliner-philharmoniker.de/en

Magic Mountain is a fun indoor climbing complex. It welcomes climbers from tourists looking for a fun adventure to serious climbers training for Alpine ventures. magicmountain.de

Race Go Karts: The indoor track operates in a safe, controlled environment. Instructors are available for guidance and challenges for the braver senior. kartland.de/english-racing-arrangements