

Kings, queens and statesmen were guests aboard in the 1930s. GIs on the way to war and home again in the 1940s sailed on the mighty ship. Although she's now permanently moored in the harbor, you can get the feel of cruising the ocean waves by enlisting to be aboard for a night or more.

Today the Queen Mary is an Art Deco Hotel on the waterfront, with more than 300 cabins and suites. She offers on-board programs, special events, educational tours, colorful shops, upscale restaurants and banquet facilities. Overnight room rates start at $100.
