

It may be a fluke or just a one-day promo to lure customers. It happened recently at a gas station in Youngstown, Ohio. We can only hope the trend to honest-priced gas will continue nationwide.

According to the AAA, gas prices have continued to decline throughout the past several months, the longest since the greedy international oil robber barons first pulled their phony cutbacks in the 1970s.

What can senior drivers do about it? Get out there on the road and enjoy some brilliant autumn scenery, whether at your nearby public park or at a magnificent U.S. National Park across the nation.
