

Remember when Ralph Cramden often promised his wife, Alice, a trip to the moon? Ralph's threat may soon become a reality. According to reports, the agency that conducts missions for NASA, plans to send two private citizens on a moon-circling voyage next year.

While the passengers' names haven't yet been revealed, we can assume they won't be seniors. They'll undergo strict tests and training for the trip, and will be required to build up their wallets as well as physiques. Rumors are that the price of the trip to the moon will be at least $200,000 each.

During the voyage passengers may hear Sinatra's voice:

*It was just one of those nights,
Just one of those fabulous flights;
A trip to the moon on gossamer wings;
Just one of those things!*
