

One of the most popular tourist attractions in the Dutch city is visiting Amsterdam's Red Light District. They get a kick at the lighted windows where prostitutes display their wares.

The sex business is legal in Amsterdam, but must be marketed from the large windows. The new laws require tourists to turn their backs from prostitutes while in the district. They're also not permitted to take photos of ladies of the evening. A more restrictive law will forbid all street-walking prostitutes. So, when in Amsterdam, senior travelers, look away!