

According to some reports, the trend has already started and will happen totally within 25 years. Of course, some of we elder wanderers won't be around to enjoy the reduced noise and end of gasoline-caused air pollution.

But thankfully, we'll have the extreme pleasure of knowing travelers will no longer be robbed by Middle East oil emirs and their crooked American oil company pals.

The move away from oil dependency is already happening in England, India, France, Japan, China and other nations.
